

Florian Kristensen — Mirror Affinity

Reading the tables

- PL is Power Level; TP is Tension Points added for the attempt; DC is the Thread Check target.
- Each String lists its check attribute. Higher PL effects are possibilities for growth, not a claim that Florian knows them all at twenty-one.
- Harmony/Discord use the campaign's usual favorable/unfavorable roll convention.
- A target asked to make a POT or RES save saves against that row's DC. A successful save prevents the listed condition; if damage is also listed, it halves that damage.
- Unless a row says otherwise, an effect needs a target Florian can see within 30 ft. An effect with a duration requires concentration if specified.
- Mirroring does not give Florian another person's memories, secrets, Affinity, Strings, physical strength, or learned expertise. A copied voice cannot speak a language he does not know.
- A reflected attack must have an external path he can intercept. He cannot reflect an illness, an internal injury, a thought, or an effect that has already taken hold.

The TP and DC values are a balancing draft, not previously established canon.

1. The Facet String — THS

Core idea: Florian senses the version of himself someone expects and can adjust his visible manner to fit it. This is his awakening String. At fourteen, the mirroring first happened before he understood he was doing it. Facet changes presentation and response, not his beliefs or memories.

| PL | TP / DC | What Florian can do                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|----|---------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | 1 / 11  | After speaking with someone briefly, he picks up one clear expectation—such as be quiet, be agreeable, or act confident . For 10 minutes , he can mirror the expected tone and posture with unusual ease. He gains Harmony on one social check made to fit that expectation. He does not |

|   |        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|---|--------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|   |        | learn what the person is secretly thinking.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 2 | 2 / 13 | Maintains a convincing social manner for 1 hour with one person or a small group sharing the same expectations. In a confrontation, he can appear to yield or hesitate convincingly; one creature that fails a RES save misreads his immediate intent and cannot take a reaction against his next movement this round. |
| 3 | 4 / 15 | Adapts as an interaction changes, recognizing when the expected role shifts. For 1 hour , he can move between two familiar manners without the change seeming abrupt. Once during that time, he gains Harmony on a check to defuse a confrontation or conceal an immediate plan.                                              |
| 4 | 6 / 17 | Holds a coherent role before a larger group for 2 hours , even when different people expect slightly different things of him. An observer gets a RES save if Florian's actions directly contradict something they personally know about him; magic cannot make an impossible lie plausible.                                   |

|   |        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|---|--------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 5 | 9 / 19 | Chooses and sustains a complex public persona for a day , adjusting its manner without losing control of the performance. Once during an encounter, he may deliberately drop the persona at a decisive moment: creatures relying on their read of him fail to anticipate his next action unless they succeed on a RES save. |
|---|--------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|

Boundary: Facet cannot make someone love or obey him. It is most dangerous to Florian when he uses it so often that he stops choosing when to put the performance down.

2. The Glimmer String — CTR

Core idea: Shape a reflective image from available light. Glimmer alters what a surface shows; it does not create a solid object. A polished tool or piece of metal makes a useful portable anchor.

| PL | TP / DC | What Florian can do                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|----|---------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | 1 / 11  | Gives a touched object a temporary reflective sheen for 10 minutes . It can serve as a small mirror or catch a light source. In combat, he can flash available light toward one creature within 15 ft ; on a failed RES save , it has Discord on its next sight-based check before his next turn. |
| 2  | 2 / 13  | Tilts the apparent reflection on a surface up to 3 ft across for 10 minutes : enough to conceal a detail, show a misleading angle, or                                                                                                                                                                    |

|   |        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|---|--------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|   |        | look around a nearby corner. It fails under close physical inspection.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| 3 | 4 / 15 | Produces a moving reflected image across a surface up to 10 ft across for 1 minute while concentrating. It can suggest motion elsewhere in a room. One creature that fails a RES save looks toward the false movement, giving Florian or an ally Harmony on one attempt to move unseen . |
| 4 | 6 / 17 | Coordinates reflections across up to three surfaces within 30 ft for 3 rounds . Florian can obscure a group's exact positions from viewers relying on sight; attacks against the obscured group have Discord until an attacker gets a clear, unreflected view.                           |
| 5 | 9 / 19 | Maintains a convincing reflected scene across a 20-ft area for 1 minute . The scene responds to changes in viewing angle, but it remains an image: touch, sound, or an observer approaching from outside the affected angles can expose it.                                                     |

Boundary: Glimmer needs light to redirect. It cannot illuminate a dark room by itself or make an image solid.

3. The Echo String — CTR

Core idea: Reflect a sound Florian has actually heard. Echo can reproduce a voice's sound, not the speaker's knowledge or intent.

| PL | TP / DC | What Florian can do                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|----|---------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | 1 / 11  | Repeats a brief sound or a few words he heard in the past hour . The sound comes from his position and lasts at most 5 seconds .                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| 2  | 2 / 13  | Reproduces a familiar voice for up to 1 minute , speaking words Florian chooses in a language he knows. A close friend of the original speaker gets a RES save to notice something is off. In combat, a voice from an unexpected direction can distract one target that fails a RES save, costing it its reaction this round. |
| 3  | 4 / 15  | Places a copied sound at a point within 30 ft for up to 3 rounds while concentrating. It can be footsteps, a tool at work, or a short exchange in voices he knows. An observer can investigate and test the illusion normally.                                                                                         |
| 4  | 6 / 17  | Layers several previously heard sounds into a convincing soundscape for 1 minute —for example, a workshop still operating                                                                                                                                                                                                     |

|   |        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|---|--------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|   |        | while he works elsewhere. In combat, creatures within 10 ft of its source that fail a RES save have Discord on their next hearing-based check or coordinated response.                                                                 |
| 5 | 9 / 19 | Maintains a responsive vocal performance for 1 hour in a voice he knows well. He can sustain conversation, but must supply every answer himself. Someone asking about private facts he does not know can still expose him immediately. |

Boundary: Echo is imitation, not communication with an absent person and not a way to steal their memories.

4. The Counterstep String — CTR

Core idea: Read and mirror an observed movement just in time to respond. This is Florian's principal close-combat String: useful for someone who can hold his own without overpowering an opponent.

| PL | TP / DC | What Florian can do                                                                                                                                                             |
|----|---------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | 1 / 11  | After watching a creature move, Florian mirrors its stance and gains Harmony on one check to keep his footing, follow it, or avoid a simple strike before his next turn. |
| 2  | 2 / 13  | Matches an opponent's timing for 1 round , reducing damage from its next physical hit against him by                                                                     |

|          |               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|----------|---------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|          |               | 1d6 . If the hit misses, he may move 5 ft without provoking a reaction from that opponent.                                                                                                                                                                     |
| 3 | 4 / 15 | Studies one creature he can see for a round. For the next 3 rounds , the first time each round it attacks him, Florian can reduce damage by 2d6 . This benefit ends if he loses sight of it or it changes tactics substantially.                               |
| 4 | 6 / 17 | Turns a mirrored defense into one counter-movement: reduce an observed physical hit by 3d6 , then make a 2d6 bludgeoning counterstrike or reposition the attacker 5 ft on a failed POT save.                                                            |
| 5 | 9 / 19 | For 3 rounds while concentrating, Florian can read the movements of up to three visible opponents . Once each round he reduces one physical hit by 4d6 and may move up to 10 ft afterward. He cannot respond to an attacker he did not perceive. |

Boundary: Counterstep copies timing, not strength. He cannot mirror a feat his body cannot perform.

5. The Mask String — CTR

Core idea: Physical shapeshifting, developed beyond Facet's change of manner. Mask changes Florian's appearance, not the experiences or capabilities of the person he resembles.

| PL | TP / DC | What Florian can do                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|----|---------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | 2 / 12  | Alters one minor visible feature—hair shade, facial contour, or apparent age by a small amount—for 10 minutes . Touch reveals ordinary living flesh, not an illusion.                                                                                                  |
| 2  | 3 / 14  | Changes several facial features for 1 hour . He can look broadly like another person if he has studied them, but close acquaintances get a RES save to notice differences. Echo is needed to copy their voice reliably.                                                |
| 3  | 5 / 16  | Takes the convincing appearance of one humanoid he has observed closely for 1 hour , within his general range of height and build. Clothes and possessions do not change with him. An observer who knows the person well can test the disguise with a RES save. |
| 4  | 7 / 18  | Adjusts height, build, and facial details more substantially for 2 hours , while remaining a plausible humanoid body. During a fight, he may change shape suddenly; one attacker that fails a RES save has Discord on its next attack against him.                     |

|   |         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|---|---------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 5 | 10 / 20 | Sustains a carefully studied humanoid form for a day , including subtle habits of expression. He can return to his usual form voluntarily. This grants no copied strength, ancestry traits, magical signature, Affinity, or Strings. |
|---|---------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|

Boundary: Mask cannot become a machine, an animal, a crowd of people, or someone with a body Florian has never adequately observed.

6. The Afterimage String — CTR

Core idea: Leave a convincing visual reflection of where Florian was—or might be. These are images, not separate minds or combatants.

| PL | TP / DC | What Florian can do                                                                                                                                                                               |
|----|---------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | 2 / 12  | Leaves a faint image in the space he just left until his next turn. One observer that fails a RES save has Discord on its next attempt to follow his exact movement.                              |
| 2  | 3 / 14  | Creates one clear double within 5 ft for 1 round . The first attack aimed at him during that time has Discord. The double disappears if touched or hit.                             |
| 3  | 5 / 16  | Creates up to two doubles within 15 ft for 3 rounds while concentrating. They can move as he directs but cannot touch, attack, open a door, or make noise without Echo. Each |

|   |         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|---|---------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|   |         | vanishes when struck.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 4 | 7 / 18  | Produces three doubles that plausibly follow separate paths through a 30-ft area for 3 rounds . Enemies who cannot identify the real Florian have Discord on their first attack against him each round.                                                                           |
| 5 | 10 / 20 | Maintains up to four responsive doubles for 1 minute . He can see from his own position only; the images do not scout or act independently. Once an observer has confirmed the real Florian through touch or another reliable sense, they are no longer fooled by the doubles that cast. |

Boundary: A double cannot take damage in his place after an attacker has correctly identified him.

7. The Looking Glass String — THS

Core idea: Use a reflection as a viewpoint. This suits a perceptive Lorehall scholar, but it is not unlimited scrying.

| PL | TP / DC | What Florian can do                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|----|---------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | 2 / 12  | Looks through a touched reflective surface from an angle he could not physically occupy, such as around the corner of a mirror, for 1 minute . He cannot see what that surface does not reflect. |

|   |         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|---|---------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 2 | 3 / 14  | Links two reflective surfaces he can see within 30 ft for 3 rounds . He sees through the second from its position, but cannot hear through it or cast from it.                                                                                                   |
| 3 | 5 / 16  | Views through a reflective surface he touched within the past hour , provided it remains within 60 ft . The view lasts 1 minute and ends if the surface is covered, broken, or turned away.                                                               |
| 4 | 7 / 18  | Maintains views through up to three known surfaces within 120 ft for 1 minute , switching between them. Watching several places divides his attention: he has Discord on checks concerning his immediate surroundings while doing so.                     |
| 5 | 10 / 20 | Returns to the view of a specific surface he deliberately marked within the past day , provided it is within 500 ft and still reflective. He can watch for up to 10 minutes while concentrating. It transmits sight only, not sound, movement, or spells. |

Boundary: Looking Glass does not see through walls by itself. It needs an actual reflective viewpoint on the other side.

8. The Symmetry String — CTR

Core idea: Compare a damaged object with an intact counterpart or surviving part. This is where Florian's childhood love of repairing and tinkering becomes distinctively his Mirror magic.

Symmetry helps him understand or hold a form; it does not conjure replacement materials.

| PL | TP / DC | What Florian can do                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|----|---------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | 1 / 11  | By handling a simple broken object, identifies how its intact side or matching part should align. Gains Harmony on one ordinary repair check involving it.                                                                                                               |
| 2  | 2 / 13  | Holds a small mechanism in its proper alignment for 10 minutes while he repairs it. In a fight, he can temporarily restore a jammed mundane tool or weapon for one use , provided its essential parts are still present.                                          |
| 3  | 4 / 15  | Uses a surviving half, plan, or matching component as a pattern while repairing a moderately complex device. The work takes normal time but does not require trial-and-error to discover its original alignment. In combat, he can brace a damaged device for 3 rounds . |
| 4  | 6 / 17  | Temporarily reconstructs the function of a missing mundane component for 1 minute using suitable spare material already on hand. The improvised part fails when the magic ends                                                                                    |

|   |        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|---|--------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|   |        | unless he makes a lasting repair.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| 5 | 9 / 19 | Over 1 hour , guides the full repair of a complex mundane machine from surviving plans, corresponding parts, and adequate materials. He can also keep one damaged machine operating for 10 minutes under pressure. It cannot outperform what that machine could originally do. |

Boundary: Symmetry is not a universal fabrication spell. A missing spring still needs something that can serve as a spring.

9. The Borrowed Hand String — CTR

Core idea: Mirror an observed physical technique for a short time. Florian can reproduce how someone moved; he does not acquire their knowledge, judgment, or supernatural gifts.

| PL | TP / DC | What Florian can do                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|----|---------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | 2 / 12  | Repeats a simple manual motion he just watched—such as a knot, grip, or tool adjustment—once with Harmony on the attempt, if he has the required tools.                                                  |
| 2  | 3 / 14  | Holds a short sequence of observed movements for 10 minutes : enough to repeat a demonstrated basic repair or fighting stance. He must have watched clearly and cannot explain principles he does |

|   |         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|---|---------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|   |         | not understand.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 3 | 5 / 16  | Copies one practiced mundane maneuver he has seen in the past day for 3 rounds . It might be a disarm, a defensive footwork pattern, or a tool operation. It uses Florian's own attributes and equipment.                                          |
| 4 | 7 / 18  | Reproduces a complex observed sequence for 1 minute while concentrating, adapting it when circumstances change slightly. A technique requiring greater strength, flexibility, or specialized equipment than he has simply fails at that point.            |
| 5 | 10 / 20 | Retains one carefully studied mundane technique for a day , using it as though he had practiced its movements. This does not grant broad training in its discipline, the original user's expertise, or access to any String woven into the demonstration. |

Boundary: Watching a healer work will not make him a healer; watching a mage cast will not give him their Affinity. He can mirror the hand motion, not the source of its power.

10. The Angle String — CTR

Core idea: Change the direction of something that reaches him. Angle is about redirection, not copying the attack or becoming immune to it.

| PL | TP / DC | What Florian can do                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|----|---------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | 2 / 12  | Tilts an incoming, visible small projectile or beam just enough to reduce damage from one hit by 1d6 . He must notice it before it lands.                                                                                                                                              |
| 2  | 3 / 14  | Redirects one visible, externally travelling attack, reducing damage by 2d6 . If he reduces it to zero, it strikes harmless terrain within 10 ft instead.                                                                                                                       |
| 3  | 5 / 16  | Turns one visible attack aside, reducing damage by 3d6 . If reduced to zero, he may direct it toward an unoccupied point within 20 ft ; he cannot automatically turn it into a hit against another creature.                                                                    |
| 4  | 7 / 18  | Redirects one physical projectile or a single-target, externally directed String of PL 4 or lower , reducing its damage by 4d8 . If that negates it, he may aim the remainder at a second target within 30 ft , which gets the original effect's normal defense or save. |
| 5  | 10 / 20 | Meets a visible, externally directed attack or String of PL 5 or lower with a reflective plane. Reduce its damage by 6d8 ; if entirely                                                                                                                                          |

|  |  |                                                                                                                                                                     |
|--|--|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|  |  | negated, he can return it toward its source, which receives its normal defense or save. He can do this once per round , not against every attack in an area. |
|--|--|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|

Boundary: He cannot reflect an effect that never travelled toward him, an entire area hazard, or harm that has already happened.

11. The Mirrorwalk String — CTR

Core idea: Move between two reflections he can actually see. Mirrorwalk is short-range repositioning, not travel to a separate mirror-world.

| PL | TP / DC | What Florian can do                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|----|---------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | 2 / 13  | Slips from one side of a reflective surface to the other, moving up to 5 ft to a visible, unoccupied space. It can help him escape a narrow angle but not pass through a solid wall.                       |
| 2  | 4 / 15  | Steps between two visible reflective surfaces up to 15 ft apart . He must fit safely at the destination. In combat, this movement does not provoke a reaction from one creature whose sightline he leaves. |
| 3  | 6 / 17  | Crosses up to 30 ft between two reflections he can see, carrying ordinary equipment. He can use a polished tool as one endpoint, but cannot arrive inside a creature or object.                            |

|   |         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|---|---------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 4 | 8 / 19  | Crosses up to 60 ft between visible reflections and may bring one willing adjacent ally . If either destination is obstructed, the cast fails rather than forcing a body into the obstruction.                                                     |
| 5 | 11 / 21 | Uses a chain of up to three visible reflections to move himself and one willing ally a total of 120 ft during one cast. He must see each successive destination from a prior point in the chain; he cannot name an unseen mirror and appear there. |

Boundary: A covered, shattered, or ill-lit surface may cease to be a useful endpoint. Mirrorwalk cannot provide travel across a city from an image of a place.

12. The Trueglass String — THS

Core idea: Recognize what is being reflected, what has been altered, and what Florian himself chooses to present. This String concerns magical appearances and self-directed form. It does not define a single “correct personality” for him or treat a mental-health condition.

| PL | TP / DC | What Florian can do                                                                                                                                                                           |
|----|---------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | 2 / 13  | By concentrating for a moment, Florian can tell whether his own current appearance or manner is being maintained by one of his Mirror Strings. He may dismiss that effect voluntarily. |
| 2  | 4 / 15  | Identifies a magical distortion in one reflection or visible disguise within                                                                                                           |

|          |                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|----------|----------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|          |                | 15 ft , though he does not automatically learn what is underneath it.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| 3 | 6 / 17  | Holds his chosen current form steady for 1 minute against an outside attempt to alter his appearance. The opposing caster must exceed his Thread Check to change it. He can still voluntarily use or dismiss Mask.                                                                                                                           |
| 4 | 8 / 19  | Reveals the boundary of magical disguise, decoy, or false reflection affecting up to three visible targets within 30 ft for 3 rounds . Allies can see which image is false, though a real concealed person may still need to be found.                                                                                                |
| 5 | 11 / 21 | For 1 minute while concentrating, establishes an area of clarity within 20 ft : Florian and willing allies can distinguish real bodies from magical reflected images and resist forced appearance changes with Harmony on their saves. It does not dispel all illusions, prevent ordinary lies, or tell anyone who they “really are.” |

Boundary: Trueglass is not an answer to Florian’s question, “Would you still love me if I was the real me?” It gives him more control over what he shows. The answer has to come from people, including himself.